President’s Message
Jim Mumm, Marquette University Law Library

Dear LLAW Members:

The biggest struggle for me in writing a newsletter article is probably conceptualizing everything that I want to say, or that should be said. Things like: How was AALL? What are our members up to? What goals can we set out and achieve as an organization? How can I effectively challenge you to be encouraged and involved in your organization?

Before I get too far into these lofty thoughts, I want to begin by pondering on another issue. Over the past few days (as of my writing this), there has been a fair amount of discussion on the Law-Lib list regarding an advertisement that a publisher put out, sent to attorneys, making reference to the notion that if you know a librarian you are probably wasting your time. I don’t want to venture into the fray of whether or not the ad was ill-conceived or denigrates librarians and the law library profession – there has been enough talk on that, nor do I want to stray into what the publisher should or should not do – there has been enough talk on that as well.

Whatever I would like to address, though, is what we as an organization can do to promote the value of librarians, both in light of “the ad”, and in light of the fact that law firms throughout the country are looking at their bottom lines and are apparently resorting to restructuring and eliminating staff – including library staff.

My personal opinion is that librarians provide a very important and cost-effective benefit to their employers. I could go into the reasons that this is true, but I think you know them better than I do. So, I am proposing that we, LLAW, should develop an ad-hoc committee to explore ways that we can, as an organization, effectively communicate to the legal community everything positive that we provide (i.e. the value of ourselves). I believe that an ad, like the one mentioned earlier, speaks volumes to the fact that we need to be on the offensive. To some extent, you might say that this is self preservation.

OK, so I’ve covered a goal. The challenge is to find people who would be willing to work on a project such as this. I don’t want to get too specific in envisioning an outcome, because I believe this needs to come from our membership. Will you volunteer to work on something of this nature? If so, please contact me.

Now for other issues:

I am very thankful to have had the support of LLAW in attending the AALL Annual Meeting this year in Washington D.C. On Saturday I attended the leadership training sessions and learned a lot about chapter leadership. Among other things, I learned that there is money available for different things. Apparently BNA and AALL provide grants (up to $1,000) to chapters who wish to bring in speakers for conferences or meetings. This is something to consider if we should choose to do so. Additionally, I understand that there are grants available to members who wish to attend AALL Annual Meetings, and that the rules are being relaxed for members who have applied in the past, so that they can apply again. You may want to keep an eye on the AALL Grants Page to see how this develops. In addition, please remember that LLAW provides very generous grants to help you with library related conferences. You can find out more information on this at the LLAW Website.

Speaking of websites, AALL is planning to change the look and feel of AALLNet, so you can keep an eye out for that in the future.

Our executive board continues to be very active and busy, as is evidenced by the minutes from our last meetings. One item that needs mention is the pending resignation of our LLAW Briefs editors. Bev and Julia have done such a tremendous job in consistently developing a stellar newsletter that we hate to see them go. Their reasoning is very understandable, but their move will bring about a need for a new editor or editors. Please consider stepping into this role. I’ve been assured that they will train you, and there is money set aside to purchase software for the person or people who take this over. Bev and Julia are not going anywhere, just stepping back from this incredible job, so that they can participate in LLAW in various other ways.

Finally, please consider how you can participate further in LLAW. I encourage you to write articles for the newsletter. Make suggestions for the program committee. Consider running for a position on next year’s Board. Share ideas of ways you want LLAW to do more for you.

Thank you very much, and I hope you are having a wonderful year.

Take care,

Jim

Report from AALL and a Thank You
Jane Colwin, Wisconsin State Law Library

Washington, DC in late July – a perfect time to spend indoors in air-conditioned meeting rooms – and that’s just what I did while attending AALL’s Annual Meeting July 25 – 28.

Highlights:

- Attending the opening night all-dessert reception at the Library of Congress – this reception is always a great venue for seeing friends and former colleagues – such as Ted Potter, formerly at Marquette and now at the University of Iowa. Although I worked with Ted on the revision of Legal Research in Wisconsin, 2d ed., all of our work was done via phone and email so it was great to finally share a congratulatory “high five.” Among the many tempting offerings was ice cream made from Thomas Jefferson’s original recipe – served at tables just outside the Thomas Jefferson’s Library exhibit.

- Having breakfast and good conversations with my fellow State Law Librarians from around the country. Budget issues for many meant that we were a smaller group this year – but we had an interesting discussion as to whether or not one of our responsibilities should be to maintain “print collections of last resort” for our respective states. Although everyone felt that they would love to be able to do this – the realities of cost and space have made this an ideal that few can really achieve. Many state law libraries have cut back on print law review collections due to Hein OnLine (Wisconsin being one of them!) and a few have discontinued maintaining 50-state statute collections, but almost everyone is hanging on to the National Reporter System – primarily to support the work of the justices and judges of their respective courts. The Standards for Appellate Court Libraries and State Law Libraries - developed by AALL’s State Court and County Law Libraries SIS and last revised in 2005, are due for an update and we were all in agreement that the section on what our collections should contain will need to be thoughtfully considered and revised in light of new technologies, digital archives, and shrinking budgets. Paraphrasing Montana State Law Librarian Judy Meadows, we are moving away from maintaining “just in case” collections and focusing more on providing “just in time” access.

- Listening to interesting programs on topics such as Electronic Court Records, Unfair Publishing Practices, GIS Applications in Law (as the mother of a very recent college graduate with a Geography/GIS degree, I found this program very interesting and wished it had been longer than the allotted thirty minutes), and Evaluating Federal e-Life Cycle Management — A Town Meeting with OMB, NARA and GPO.

Due to a foot problem resulting from doing too much walking on my first day in DC, I was moving slowly and so didn’t do too much exploring in the Exhibit Area this time – all the usual suspects were there, of course, and seemed to be enjoying lots of customers. BNA was my favorite booth – due to its front row location and the always-on-offer Starbucks and cookies! Their feature video presentation, “BNA – The Voice of Authority”, on how their huge reporting staff works in DC to cover all the legal, legislative and regulatory beats, was actually pretty interesting – check it out here.

I want to thank LLAW’s Grants Committee for providing me with a grant to help defray the costs of attending AALL this year. Funding approval for out-of-state travel for state employees is still very restricted, so the LLAW grant made a big difference.

James, Sylvia. “Using Broker/Analyst Reports.”
Legal Information Alert 28(3):1, 4-6 (March 2009)

The author explains the basic facts about using broker analyst reports, examines their advantages and disadvantages, and discusses the wide range of sources that can be used to obtain them.

The author proposes that copyright law should recognize that digital technology has changed the way works are edited and published. He argues that the law should allow creative reuse and recycling of digital media, and suggests that courts interpret fair use expansively until the law has been amended.

GlobaLex (July 2009) http://www.nyulawglobal.org/Globalex/Qatar.htm

This article examines the transparency and accountability problems of unpublished opinions in district courts. The author argues that the justifications for unpublished opinions are overstated and unconvincing, and explores how technology can facilitate the reform of current practices.

AALL Spectrum 13(9):30-33 (July 2009)

The author discusses the challenges involved in providing no-fee public access to large portions of federal civil court records through the PACER database, while at the same time protecting legitimate privacy interests.

Madison, Michael J. “Information Convergence: At the Boundaries of Access: Information Governance.”

In a broad discussion about information, law, and policy, the author uses as his example the Google Library Project, which is controversial because of the many doctrinal problems associated with it. He asks whether thinking about the Google Library Project in different ways can or cannot actually alter the likelihood that it will become accepted and perceived as a legitimate enterprise.

Marder, Nancy S. “From ‘Practical Obscurity’ to Web Disclosure: A New Understanding of Public Information.”

In this essay, the author explores the problems raised by placing court documents and campaign contributors on the web, and offers some possible solutions.

Martin, Peter W. “Online Access to Court Records: from Documents to Data, Particulars to Patterns.”

Remote access to federal court records through PACER (Public Access to Court Electronic Records) began in 1998, and continues to expand. The author identifies PACER’s impact and possibilities, and examines how state courts are addressing public access to court records.

The author proposes that intellectual property rights (IPR) become freely transferable articles of trade, arguing that the public IPR auction is already a step in this direction.

The author chronicles West’s decline as the dominant influence on case law research, and on the way that lawyers think about law. He observes that the legal profession must find new ways of assuring the trustworthiness of case reports in the digital age.

Moffat, Viva R. “Regulating Search.”

This article suggests that federal courts take on the task of regulating search engines. It argues that a federal forum for regulating search engine disputes is more likely to encourage a comprehensive assessment of both the disputes and the broader policy issues, while avoiding the drawbacks of agency regulation.

Morrison, Caren M. “Privacy, Accountability, and the Cooperating Defendant: Towards a New Role for Internet Access to Court Records.”
This piece argues that enabling the public and the press to access criminal court files on the web won’t shed much light on the workings of government and is likely to prove counterproductive. It recommends instead the disclosure of plea bargains with identifying information removed.

The author uses a wide variety of constitutional arguments to support his thesis: that the anticircumvention provision in section 1201 of the Digital Millennium Copyright Act is unconstitutional.

Products that are used to organize, provide context, and distribute information have gone largely unprotected by intellectual property law. The author argues that alternatives such as contract law and technological mechanisms have not been successful, and proposes a scheme that seeks to both benefit creators of information products and promote the free flow of information.

This meditation on copyright from its beginnings through its development in the U.S. to 1997 remained unfinished when Prof. Patterson died in 2003. Judge Birch collaborated on the manuscript during the final years of its development, and Prof. Craig Joyce edited it for publication.

Case studies of corporate library reductions and closures suggest strategies that researchers can use to minimize their chances of becoming victims of the process.

Intellectual property law generally permits innovators to create products that interoperate with existing systems, even without permission. The author argues that the Digital Millennium Copyright Act’s interoperability exemption is largely ineffective, and proposes broadening it to create a more hospitable environment for interoperable technologies.

The author analyzes the constitutionality of nonprecedential status rules for unpublished opinions. She argues that nonprecedential status rules and practices are unconstitutional based on an interpretation of the right of access to courts in Article III of the Constitution.

Judge Pollak argues that the U.S. News & World Report law school rankings are flawed, and that a more reliable ranking would require the inclusion of even more unquantifiable data, such as how recent and current law students feel about their alma mater. He concludes that since it is not feasible to give numerical value to law school quality, doing so encourages law schools to devote their resources to an empty competition.

This note attempts to clarify the issues surrounding copyright reform by focusing on the rights and desires of creators, consumers, and distributors.

In Warner Brothers v. RDR Books, Warner Brothers sued a fan for copyright infringement for publishing a reference guide to the Harry Potter series. After weighing the fair use factors, the federal district court ruled in favor of Warner Brothers. This casenote explores the court’s reasoning and the impact this decision could have on copyright law.

This bibliography covers 2001-2009, and is organized by format: books, law review articles, electronic or print services, and websites.

The authors examine the effect of judicial ideology on intellectual property case outcomes before the Supreme Court from 1954 to 2006. They find that the more conservative a justice is, the more likely he or she is to vote in favor of recognizing and enforcing intellectual property rights.

The author discusses how fair use has been adjudicated in a variety of cases, and suggests factors that should be given greater or lesser weight in certain fair use situations. She concludes that fair use is an integral and essential part of U.S. copyright law that can encompass a wide range of contexts.

This tabular guide compiles information about online sources of authoritative Wisconsin legal information, emphasizing those that are reliable and free or low-cost. The table is divided into categories that include: case law, citators, legislation, regulations, law review/legal journal articles, Wisconsin law / legislative libraries, and document/book delivery services.

The author argues that copyright law should be revised to distinguish between conduct known to harm author incentives and conduct with more ambiguous effects. He further argues that copyright’s burden of proof should be re-structured to better filter harmful from harmless uses.

In the U.S., protection of individuals‘ ability to dispose of copyrighted material that they lawfully own is known as the first sale doctrine. This casenote investigates the role of the first sale doctrine within licensing transactions of copyrighted material. The court held that the use of licensing language does not necessarily create a valid license.

The author argues that search-query logs, maintained by search engines such as Google, are typically traceable to an individual user and consequently create a serious privacy problem. He analyzes search engines’ privacy-invasive activities and discusses a range of solutions.

This article suggests strategies for dealing with the switch to electronic information technology for court records management, with the goal of maintaining public trust in the judicial system.

A. The President thanked everyone for attending the meeting and winding down the year.

B. Congratulations to next year’s incoming officers. Congratulations also go to the Calendar Committee for winning the AALL marketing award.

C. AALL requested information on LLAW’s VIP for the AALL Annual Conference, but LLAW will not be sending a VIP representative to the conference this year.

D. Committee reports are due to the President by May 29th.

E. The President thanked all Board members for their service this year.

V. Committee Reports

Archives (Candace Hall Slaminski): No report.

Government Relations (Tony Chan): See attached written report submitted by the Committee. Wisconsin is quiet as is typical. At the federal level, Rep. Steve Driehaus from Ohio introduced a new bill designed to increase public access to information by standardizing and limiting the use of information control designations.

Tony also encouraged anyone attending AALL to attend the legislative advocacy leadership training program.

Grants (Maureen Burns): Maureen encouraged last minute grant applications, as funding is still available.

Membership (Diane Duffey):

Currently there are:
- Active members: 77
- Associate members: 7
- Student members: 4
- Sustaining members: 3

Total members: 91

The new 2009-10 membership renewal forms will be coming in at the end of the month. Diane will also add Katie Nelson and Jenny Zook to the Executive Board listserv. Jim Mumm indicated that he would send any changes in Committee chairs to Diane for the listserv as well. Jim also inquired whether there were any librarians on the list of Wisconsin Law Libraries Open to the Public who could be contacted about membership in LLAW. It was noted that many of the county law libraries are not librarian-staffed libraries but simply small collections of legal resources that are maintained by other government employees.

Newsletter (Julia Jaet/Bev Butula): June 1, 2009 is the deadline for submissions to the next edition of the newsletter. This edition will feature the first column by incoming President, Jim Mumm. Committee reports will need to be published, so please send those in as well.

Nominating (Carol Schmitt): The election results are in: Jenny Zook will be the new President Elect, while Katie Nelson will be the new Secretary. Susan O'Toole will continue on in the position of Treasurer.

Placement (Barbara Fritschel): No report.

Program (Jill Bradshaw/Jim Mumm): Our next membership meeting will take place on May 27th and will feature a presentation on Twitter. Thanks go to Mary Koshollek for the Twitter idea. The meeting was planned to take place at Hi-Way Harry’s but will need to be moved closer to Milwaukee to accommodate the guest speaker. Board members made several suggestions with respect to possible locations, and the Program Committee will follow up with those suggestions.

Public Relations/Articles (Laura La Rose): See attached report. The Committee is in need of volunteers to set up and take down the LLAW table display at the AALL Annual Conference. Volunteers should contact Laura.

Web (Carol Hassler): The annotated list of Wisconsin Law Libraries Open to the Public had been hosted on the Wisconsin State Law Library (WSLL) website but will be moved to the LLAW website. WSLL will provide a redirected link. The document itself is out of date and needs to be updated. It was suggested that it go through an annual update. The document was initially put together by the PALI Committee, which has since been suspended as an active committee. The Board generally agreed that the document should be updated and could serve as a method of contacting and encouraging any additional Wisconsin law librarians to join LLAW, though it was again noted that many of the law libraries listed are unstaffed. Leslie Behroozi volunteered to update the document, and Jamie Kroening offered assistance as well. Diane Duffey inquired whether the Board was reinstating the PALI committee. Carol Schmitt moved to reinstate the PALI committee. Leslie Behroozi seconded the motion. The Board members unanimously agreed to reinstate the PALI committee. Leslie Behroozi was named as Chair of the committee. Marc Weinberger inquired whether the State Law Library had access to a county clerks’ mailing list. Carol Hassler noted that WSLL does have access to county information, but there is no good, consistent list of contacts for clerks. She indicated that a reliable contacts list needs to be created.

VI. Old Business

None
VII. New Business

A. Marc Weinberger reminded Board members to get their LLAW membership renewals in early.

B. Carol Schmitt noted that the Calendar Committee’s AALL marketing award would be awarded at the AALL Annual Conference in a separate awards ceremony with pictures. Jim Mumm will accept the award on behalf of LLAW and the Calendar Committee. Carol noted that she was a member of the AALL awards committee and had to abstain from voting on the marketing award.

VIII. Other Announcements

None

IX. Miscellaneous

A. State Bar Liaison (Ad-Hoc) Committee:
Carol Schmitt, chair of the committee, sent a letter to State Bar representatives seeking the status of LLAW’s request for librarian discounts. The State Bar responded that some category of assistance will be offered to help but we do not yet know what that will be.

B. Budget:
Jim Mumm reminded Board members that the next Board meeting is the budget meeting. He requested that Board members begin thinking of budget issues and provide information on next year’s budget needs to Susan O’Toole. He will send out an e-mail with ideas before the next meeting.

X. Adjournment

Carol Schmitt moved to adjourn the meeting at 12:35 p.m., and Jim Mumm seconded the motion. The Board members unanimously agreed. No one opposed, and no one abstained.
II. Approval of Minutes from Last Meeting

The minutes from the May 6, 2009 Board meeting that was held via videoconference in both Madison and Milwaukee, Wisconsin were discussed. Leslie Behroozi moved to approve the minutes as submitted, and Candace Hall Slaminski seconded the motion. The board members agreed unanimously. No one opposed, and no one abstained.

III. Treasurer’s Report – Given by Susan O’Toole.

A. Currently (as of 8/19/09)
   Ending Balance – checking account: $5,084.38
   Ending Balance – savings account: $3,712.77
   Balance Total: $8,797.15

B. Susan O’Toole moved to switch our checking account from small business checking to organizational checking, which would give us a monthly savings and other benefits. Julia Jaet seconded the motion. The board members agreed unanimously. No one opposed, and no one abstained.

C. The Board discussed using PayPal for membership dues payments. Susan also noted that M&I has a Merchant Services system that may work the same way as PayPal without the fees. Susan and Carol Hassler will explore using both services.

IV. President’s Report – Jim Mumm

A. AALL Conference
   - Jim thanked Julia Jaet for Elsie the Cow’s Harley scarf. Jim and Laura LaRose thanked the volunteers who set up and took down the LLAW display.
   - Jim reported that the rules for grants to members to attend AALL have changed and members are now eligible to apply for a grant every 3 years.
   - AALLNET is revamping the website to be completed by 2010, and in preparation, Carol Hassler has cleaned up our LLAW holdings on AALLNET.
   - BNA is co-sponsoring a grant up to $1000 for program speakers to chapters.
   - AALL is doing strategic planning. The Board discussed that we completed a strategic plan in 2006 so we may not need to do it again yet.
   - AALL is developing a WIKI for programming resources. Chapters who plan programs are encouraged to contribute the details to the wiki so it can be used as a resource for other chapters.

B. Unsung Heroes
   Nominations were due August 14. Laura LaRose will attend the judging on Wednesday, August 26.

C. WLA Membership
   The board discussed joining this year for $75.00 but decided that there was no benefit to our chapter.

D. Ideas and issues to bring up under new business
   Discussed under New Business

V. Committee Reports

A. Archives (Candace Hall Slaminski):
   Candace and Bev Butula are about half way through reviewing and weeding the paper archives. They plan to get together within the next 2 months to continue.

B. Government Relations (Tony Chan):
   The Government Relations Committee is looking for members who would like to serve on the committee, and suggestions for activities the committee could undertake. Tony would like the committee to undertake more advocacy rather than simply monitoring legal developments. The Board suggested that the pending Wisconsin legislation to limit access to CCAP would be a good issue for us to become involved in.

C. Grants (Maureen Burns): No report

D. Membership (Marc Weinberger/Diane Duffey):

Currently there are:

- Active members: 73
- Associate members: 4
- Student members: 4
- Sustaining members: 3
- Total members: 86

Diane & Marc reported that it is time to go green with the membership directory, and send it out as a PDF in email, although this year’s edition is already at the printer.

Barbara Fritschel moved that future editions be issued electronically, and Julia Jaet seconded. The board members agreed unanimously. No one opposed, and no one abstained.

AALL wants our membership list by September 14 to compare with theirs and see who is not a member of AALL. Discussion as to whether this violates privacy. Decided that it does not since LLAW is associated with AALL but we will need to modify the wording on our membership application.

E. Newsletter (Julia Jaet/Bev Butula):

The deadline for submissions to the Fall 2009 newsletter is Sept. 1.
Bev and Julia stated that this would be their last year as newsletter editors and it’s time for new people with fresh ideas. They will put an article in the next newsletter asking for volunteers.

The Board discussed raising the price for print copies of the newsletter asking for those who request it. The current price is $4.00 per year ($1.00 per issue) and the suggestion was made to increase it to $5.00 per issue. Julia will study the costs involved and present numbers for the Board to review.

F. Nominating (Jamie Kroening):

Jamie reported that the last round of nominating and election had actual costs of $61.00 but only $31.00 of that was billed back to LLAW, so she would like to use an online voting system instead of paper ballots. AALL has a mechanism but charges $200 for it. The Board discussed using Survey Monkey as a free alternative. We can’t restrict it to one vote per member but Bev pointed out that since our races are not contested it’s not an issue. Jamie will look into whether online voting would violate our Bylaws or Procedure Manual.

G. PALI (Leslie Behroozi):

Leslie and Carol Hassler are just coming up with a game plan for updating the annotated list of Wisconsin Law Libraries Open to the Public. Carol will contact Theresa Owens at the Supreme Court about ways to contact the clerks of court from each county.

H. Placement (Barbara Fritschel): No report

I. Program (Jill Bradshaw):

Jill Bradshaw reported that upcoming Quarterly Meeting programs will include Foreign Law, Web 2.0, Chief Justice Shirley Abrahamson and Summer Associate training.

J. Public Relations/Articles (Laura La Rose): No report

K. Web (Carol Hassler): No report

VI. Old Business

A. State Bar Liaison (Ad-Hoc) Committee – Carol Schmidt

The committee is in sit and wait mode. Carol will contact someone at the State Bar.

B. Other Old Business

Jim reported that LLAW received a $250 award and a plaque from AALL for marketing. The plaque will be kept in Archives.

VII. New Business

A. Budget Development
   Susan O’Toole distributed final budget figures for FY2010
   Bev Butula moved to accept the FY2010 budget and Laura LaRose seconded. The board members agreed unanimously. No one opposed, and no one abstained.

B. Other new business
   Jim Mumm suggested we consider hosting a Midwest Law Librarians conference, along the lines of one the chapter did in 1998, called LibraryFest Midwest. It would include librarians from Michigan, Ohio, and Mid-American chapters. Jim will initiate an email discussion of the idea.

VIII. Other Announcements

Bev Butula reported that Tony Anderson is no longer with the Wisconsin Law Journal. The new contact is Sarah McQuin. Her e-mail is sarah.mcquin@wislawjournal.com. She can be reached by phone at 414-225-1814.

IX. Adjournment

Bev Butula moved to adjourn the meeting at 1:19 p.m., and Diane Duffey seconded the motion. The Board members unanimously agreed. No one opposed, and no one abstained.
